Blockchain Industry Background

B I T C O I N Bitcoin

Invented in 2008 by Satoshi Nakamoto, Bitcoin is a decentralized digital currency that allows secure and seamless peerto-peer transactions on the internet and operates on a decentralized Blockchain. It has no central authority, but its users can interact with each other via a ledger that is maintained by a network of computers (also called nodes). Since its inception, Bitcoin has become the world's most popular cryptocurrency while many other cryptocurrencies have been created, frequently called Altcoins (a blend of bitcoin alternatives). Bitcoin and its derivatives use decentralized control as opposed to centralized electronic money or centralized banking systems and because it has no central authority, transactions are confirmed through group consensus and not by the government. Bitcoin was created so people and institutions wouldn't have to rely on government or financial institutions to make transactions, rather, Bitcoin allows users to transact amongst themselves using the Blockchain. The goal of Bitcoin is "to create an electronic version of cash that allows payments to be sent directly from one party to another without going through a financial institution." Bitcoin was originally invented as an open-source project so anyone could take part in developing it and GEM Media Chain GEMCOIN (GMC) aims to take this concept to the next level. By using a team of developers, designers, and managers GEMCOIN (GMC) platform can create a better and more efficient way to manage all crypto assets from anywhere.
